

This is a detailed illustration of a 100 Ruble banknote from 1918. The note is rectangular with a textured, yellowish background. At the top center, the number '100' is printed in a large, bold, sans-serif font. Below it, the word 'РУБЛЕЙ' (Rubles) is written in a stylized, outlined font. The central part of the note features a large, ornate emblem consisting of a star and a crescent moon, which is a symbol often associated with the early Soviet period. The word 'СТО' (100) is printed in large, bold, outlined letters across the center. Below this, the word 'РУБЛЕЙ' is printed in a similar bold, outlined font. The bottom center of the note features the year '1918' in a bold, sans-serif font. On the left side, there is a vertical strip of text in Russian, which is part of the banknote's security features. On the right side, there is a vertical strip of text in Arabic, also part of the security features. The entire note is framed by an ornate, decorative border with intricate scrollwork and floral patterns. The overall design is highly detailed and characteristic of early 20th-century banknote art.