tender coins ranging in denominations from 20 pesos to 3,000 pesos. The three smaller denominations (20, 50, and 100 pesos) are struck in a copper-aluminum-nickel alloy. The three larger denominations (1,000, 2,000 and 3,000 pesos) are struck in .900 fine silver. Sets will be issued in 1977 and 1978. Each coin depicts different points of interest inherent to the Games.

Numismatically, the set is the first of its kind. It is also the first time in 93 years that Argentina has issued a silver coin.

Few events can claim the social and political impact of this great tournament. The significance of this issue will make the set a prized collector's item to coin collectors and soccer lovers throughout the world.
